

Sulfur Butterflies

Common sulfur butterflies are the little yellow guys anyone can recognize by their color and their size.
When they lite they fold their wings, and their in-flight openings are such momentary things no one sees their colorings.
We would all be gratified if they'd spread their wings out wide and expose their upper side where their markings are applied.

Bud Morris
2/25/10
www.BudMorris.net

